ROME, Dec. 27 — (INS) — Blaming Britain for supplying arms to Ethiopia, the Italian press reopened its offensive against Britain for the first time since the now dead Italo-Ethiopian peace negotiations started weeks ago, while Italy lengthened her stride in the preparedness race with London and Geneva.

Several thousand additional aviation experts are to be summoned for duty within two days; 10,000 to 15,000 more naval officers and specialists have already been mobilized this week, and "further orders of a sensational character" to expedite the Ethiopian campaign were expected "momentarily".

"Menacing clouds on the horizon threaten to change into a storm," warned the official organ of Vatican opinion, Osservatore Romano.

Italian fighting airmen at the front are concentrating their attention on Ethiopian columns near the frontier of Britain's crown colony of Kenya in order to cut off supplies of arms and ammunition flowing in "with the complacent aid of the colony's government," wrote General Ambrogio Bolatti, military expert for the newspaper Piccolo.

GOVERNOR ASKS EXPERTS TO TEST BRUNO FOR TRUTH

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 27 — (INS) — Reports were current early today that a "lie detector" expert has been invited by Governor Harold Hoffman to conduct a test on Bruno Richard Hauptmann, awaiting execution for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

The governor, it was reported, wrote an invitation to the expert yesterday. The letter, it was said, had been addressed to Ann Arbor, Mich. It was pointed out that should the unidentified expert accept the governor's invitation Hauptmann could not be subjected to the test until permission had first been obtained from Supreme Court Justice Thomas Trenchard, who presided at the Carpenter's Flemington trial.

Zasu Pitts Testifies

AMONG witnesses called by Los Angeles authorities in their investigation of the Thelma Todd mystery was Zasu Pitts, screen comedienne and one-time comedy partner of the blond actress. Miss Pitts, who accompanied Thelma to a hat shop several days before she died, told investigators that "I never saw Thelma happier in her life than that day. We went shopping and Thelma bought a lot of Christmas wrapping and seats and I am sure she expected to be alive and observe Christmas."

TODD JURORS TO HEAR WITNESSES

Zasu Pitts Scheduled; Report of Fight With Man Probed

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27 — (INS) — A new "mystery man" — One who climaxed an argument by striking Thelma Todd a few days before she died — was sought by officials here today as the latest figure in the startling investigation of the strange death of the beautiful blonde actress.

Reports of the fight, which is said to have taken place in Miss Todd's gay sidewalk cafe in the presence of a staff of waiters and bartenders, were being studied by district attorney's investigators today as the Los Angeles grand jury continued its investigation into possible "murder by monoxide" of the actress.

Before resuming their sessions today, members of the grand jury visited the important scenes in the case. These included the Sidewalk cafe, owned jointly by Roland West, former film director, and Miss Todd; the actress' swank apartment adjoining one in which

Proposal Far Cry from Hoare-Laval Plan Giving Territory to Duce

ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 27 — (INS) — Ethiopian troops, striking deep behind the Italian lines, have cut off Italian communications with the important northern city of Makale, the government announced today, after fighting in which the Italians were routed leaving between 30 and 100 dead.

At the same time, as a result of this and other recent Ethiopian victories on the northern front, Emperor Haile Selassie was semi-officially reported to have drawn up a five-point program of peace terms which would net Italy virtually nothing and which are set forth as the minimum terms upon which the Negus would negotiate a peace.

Far From Plan

Here is the reported peace program, embodying drastic Ethiopian demands which are a far cry from the now-dead Hoare-Laval peace proposals which would have given half of Ethiopia to Italy.

ROOSEVELT AIDES STUDYING BONUS TO WIN APPROVAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27 — (INS) — Democratic leaders moved swiftly today to unite opposing congressional factions behind a soldiers' bonus bill acceptable to President Roosevelt.

Determined to capture the veterans' vote in the forthcoming presidential election, Democratic officials are anxious to enact a measure that will not run afoul of a White House veto.

Fearful that bonus legislation can be passed over the president's veto, numerous Democrats in both chambers consider it wiser politically to draft a bill carrying the president's favor.

Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee which handles bonus legislation, indicated he would seek to work out a compromise proposal through a series of conferences between various veterans blocs and Mr. Roosevelt.

LAVAL DEFENDS PEACE EFFORTS IN PLEA TODAY

Vote of Confidence to Be Taken By Deputies at Conclusion of Address

PARIS, Dec. 27 — (INS) — With his fate as premier at stake, Pierre Laval gave the Chamber of Deputies a detailed defense of his foreign policy as debate on it opened in the chamber of deputies today.

"I have taken grave responsibilities," he said. "I endeavored to clear up the atmosphere between Italy and Britain. I did everything to make pacific solutions prevail."

With a vote of confidence due at the close of the debate, which may last through tomorrow, Laval defended in particular the now-dead Hoare-Laval peace proposals. Of these he said:

The Paris proposals are considered dead. The Ethiopian and Italian governments did not show the alacrity and comprehension we were entitled to expect.

Defending the peace plan he and Sir Samuel Hoare, now resigned British foreign minister, had devised to end the east African war, Laval cited the fear that Italy would interpret an oil embargo as an act of war, and that he and Sir Samuel had tried to obviate its necessity.

Laval's defense of his peace plan was similar to that Sir Samuel made in the House of Commons after he had resigned. In fact, Laval quoted from Hoare's speech today.

Laval also hinted that his action was designed to prevent Italy from quitting the league in anger, as Japan and Germany did.

Firemen Crowd Hospitals After South Bend Blaze

Legionnaires Man City Trucks as Fighters Suffer Agony; Nine Freeze to Death in Chicago Area

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 — (INS) — Nine deaths from freezing, deaths attributed to exposure and accidents, a disastrous $250,000 fire, hundreds hospitalized, and untold suffering and misery were attributed to old man winter today as he continued to hold the Chicago area in a tight icy grasp.

At South Bend, Ind., practically every member of the city's fire Department was hospitalized today, after fighting a quarter of a million dollar fire for 16 hours before finally bringing it under control early today. Members of the American Legion manned South Bend fire equipment today.

Many Firemen Frozen

The fire started in a ten cent store waste basket, spread with lightning rapidity to a bank and three stores, and for a time threatened the entire business district. Firemen suffered intense agony as water from their steaming hoses froze and encased them in sheaths of ice. Some of the fire ladders, falling with sheer exhaustion, had to have their clothes hacked from their bodies. Many received treatment at a Red Cross emergency first aid station and a half dozen times before being carried to ambulances and rushed to hospitals.

Freezing to death of nine persons brought the Chicago death toll to 11. In addition many deaths were indirectly attributable to the sub-zero temperatures — traffic accidents, skidding, exposure, falls on icy walks and pavements.

A measure of relief was promised.

ARMY FLYER OFF COURSE CREATES INTEREST IN CITY

An Army flyer, apparently off his course, brought numerous residents out of downtown buildings and homes in the southeast of the city Friday morning.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27 — (INS) — Pretty Marion Hepburn, 17, sister of Katherine, the film star, braved sub-zero temperatures today to begin two months of social service work on Chicago's northwest side.

She and a classmate, Lois Shaw of Boston, from Bennington college, Vermont, enrolled at Famous Hull house yesterday as voluntary social service workers.

So eager were the girls to begin their work of visiting immigrants' homes, interesting parents and children in the welfare work of the famous settlement house, that they gave up their Christmas vacations at home to hasten here.

Industrial Leaders Predicting Continued Recovery

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
Hailing the great improvement in business this year, industrial leaders today predicted continuation of the upward swing of recovery in 1936.

The part played by natural recuperative forces was stressed. Excerpts from the statements follow:

CHARLES W. NASH, chairman, Nash Motors Co.—Prospects for the coming year are rosy. Continued improvement in farm economics is one factor encouraging an optimistic prediction for 1936. Another is a widely spread and progressively increasing liberalization of personal and corporate expenditures for additions and replacements.

Automobile production schedules for 1936 have been fixed well above those of 1935. It is difficult at this time to perceive any possibility of curtailment; on the other hand it is entirely possible we will find that industry has been too conservative in its planning.

WARD MELVILLE, president, Melville Shoe Corp.—With natural forces helping the trend toward recovery, retail business should be generally good throughout 1936.

Production in nearly all lines has been notably increased; confidence is at a higher level than for four years, and if advancing prices, due to higher costs of raw materials, do not outstrip the public's capacity to pay, the resulting business should be healthier than at any time since the United States entered the depression.

T. A. BUCKNER, president New York Life Insurance Co.—Improved business conditions and a revival of public confidence during the past year lead me to anticipate further gains in 1936. For a reversal of the present downward trend in interest rates of high-grade securities, we must look forward to the stimulation of general business with an increased demand for capital such as usually follows recovery from a period of economic depression.

JOSEPH WILSHIRE, president, Standard Brands, Inc.—The food business turned definitely upward during the last six months of the year and indications are that, barring fundamental interruptions to business in general, this upward trend should continue. There has been a noticeable improvement in demand for quality

SHOWING A THREE-SUITER

THIRTEEN times in one thousand hands a 5-4-4-0 hand appears. To hold such a hand, with all suits bidable is vastly rarer. However, such a holding was dealt to himself by South, and each suit was so strong that he felt obliged to make an opening bid of 2-Clubs, wanting to make certain that his suits would be kept alive until game could be reached at some suit. Had he known that West would overcall whatever was bid, South might have bid 1-Club, then doubled that call, asking partner to pick his own best suit.

Bidding went: South, 2-Clubs; West, 2-Diamonds; South, 2-Spades; West, 3-Diamonds; South, 3-Hearts; North, 4-Hearts, as partner had employed about the only possible method of making North feel that he should support so sturdily a hand as partner had shown.

Of course the opening lead was the K of diamonds. Declarer ruffed. Not having the benefit of double-dummy knowledge South lost his K of hearts to the lone Ace. Then he had to ruff the Q of diamonds with the 10 of hearts.

To fulfill the game contract clubs would have to be established, or dummy would have a losing spade trick for defenders. The Ace and K of clubs were led. Dummy ruffed the 3 of clubs. East overruffed with the 8. The 5 of diamonds was led back and declarer ruffed with his last trump, but dummy still held 3 trumps and had no more diamonds. The 6 of clubs was ruffed by both dummy and East, giving defenders their third trick.

Declarer's troubles were over now. Dummy held 2 long trumps and 3 spades. Declarer held a long club and 4 spades. No matter what East led back declarer's Ace and K of spades, and long club must win 3 tricks, while dummy's 2 long trumps were good for the 2 remaining tricks, just giving 4-odd, doubled.

South plays the above hand at 7-Spades. The opening lead is the 3 of diamonds. Before Monday see how many tricks declarer should win against perfect subsequent defense.

GRID MENTORS MAY DO LITTLE ABOUT 'SALARY'

Subsidizing May Be Untouched in Session; McGugin Offers Three Changes

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(INS)—In spite of some pretty suggestive advance billing which seemed to assume that the subject was not without novelty, I understand that the National Collegiate Athletic association will do very little, if anything, today about the proposed proposal that college football players be formally paid off by voucher. Perhaps I could have simplified this statement by saying that the National Collegiate Athletic association will do very little, if anything, today.

Anyhow, some of its spokesmen assure me that among the things it will not do is take either a positive or negative position on what was presumed to be the attitude of the Southeastern conference toward football subsidization. In the first place, the N. C. A. just has the debating privilege here. In the second, there are too many institutions who would not greatly care to have this sensitive subject paraded before the press.

No Planned Attack

Of course, some crank may see this idea as a great chance to hit the headlines and will thereupon read some rapid and incendiary lines into the record. But, at this moment, there is no planned attack on football subsidizing any more than there will be a planned attempt next fall to persuade the public that 80,000 crowds are really unfashionable.

In other words, there may be an enfeebled bleak or two from the reformers today, but I think football can be depended upon to go on paying its players or not paying them, strictly according to taste and expediency.

In the same way, the football coaches can be depended upon to do more and accomplish less today than any other body, largely because football coaches, by the nature of things, are very oral and very helpless. They have no administrative standing, so Chick Mehan's announced program for having the goal posts returned to the goal line and Dan McGugin's three-way plan will fall upon appreciative but futile ears.

Would Change Rule

Mr. McGugin, first, would have a 15 yard penalty for pass interference, rather than giving the ball to the attacking team at the point of the foul, a penalty which, in some cases, might be tougher to call than the present rule. He would further modify the rule which forfeits possession of the ball at the point where an ineligible player is struck by a forward pass and also wants something done about the modern practice of roughing the passer.

Moscrip on Team; Confidence Reigns in Camp of Big Red; Defense Against Pass Attack Studied

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 27—(INS)—Stanford's Big Red machine today resumed work in an attempt to bolster its defense against Southern Methodist's passing attack, during a practice session scheduled at Brookside park.

The Indians arrived here yesterday and during the afternoon workout, Ernie Nevers—in Mustang formations—completed far too many passes against the varsity to satisfy the coaching staff. They showed plenty of class in all other departments yesterday, with the workout being featured by Bill Paulman's kicking.

Boots 70 Yards

The stocky blond sent the pigskin spiraling 65 and 70 yards down the field with such height that even as fine a safety man as Jimmy Coffis had trouble catching the punts. Paulman's efforts were from quick kick formations and not even Frank Alustiza, who was standing nearby, could have produced better results.

"Monk" Moscrip, injured end, was to resume his place in the lineup today and felt certain he would be able to last most of the game against the Mustangs. In his last practice at Palo Alto, the all-American flankman sent the pigskin between the posts on 30 consecutive kicks from the 30-yard line. With Moscrip absent from yesterday's practice, his berth was filled by the diminutive Alex Trompas who displayed much speed in going down the field under Paulman's punts.

Team Is Chosen

Coach "Tiny" Thornhill definitely decided upon the starting lineup of the Reds, with Moscrip and Topping, ends; Reynolds and Beedle, tackles; Roubie and Adams, guards; Muller, center; Paulman, quarter; Hamilton and Coffis, halfbacks; and Grayson, fullback.

The boys, in perfect physical shape with exception of Moscrip, exhibited a quiet confidence of victory, with none of the over-confidence of the Columbia game nor the careless attitude shown against Alabama.

Wood, Walter Hagen and a score of others today were shooting at the 68 recorded yesterday by Al "Butch" Krueger, Beloit golf and baseball professional, in the first round of the Pasadena open tournament at Brookside park.

Krueger, still smarting from the decision that cost him a stroke in the southern California open at Oakmont, Monday, was hitting them far and straight yesterday at Brookside and his score could well have been a couple of strokes better than that turned in.

Trailing Krueger by one stroke yesterday was the Ogden, Utah professional, George Schneider, with a 69, while professionals Ray Mangrum and Les Madison and Amateur Henry Batista, another product of Pasadena's public links, had cards of 70.

Qualifying play in the Pasadena event's first round is strung out over three days and will be concluded tomorrow.

foods, which indicates improved purchasing power. Adequate volume at fair prices is the solution in the food business, as in other lines. We shall continue to advertise our brands, as I believe judicious advertising is a big factor in increasing demand for package foods.

E. T. WEIR, chairman, National Steel Corp.—If purely business factors were all that had to be considered in appraising the present situation or the prospects of the immediate future, we should have every reason to believe the impressive business gains of 1935 have been made on solid ground. The only serious obstacle to a sustained upward movement is the continuance of political interference with the normal workings of the business system.

ROBERT C. STANLEY, president International Nickel Co.—Statistics for the first ten months of 1935 indicate the current year's business will be the largest in the history of the nickel industry. World consumption of nickel in the ten months aggregated 133,300,000 pounds, the largest for the period in the history of the industry.

AXTELL J. BYLES, president, American Petroleum Institute—The petroleum industry contributed to recovery in 1935 by increasing employment 37 per cent above the depression low point; by shortening working hours 30 per cent, and by raising wages to the point where, in purchasing power, they stand virtually at the 1929 peak.

IRVIN F. LEHMAN, president, Blaw-Knox Co.—Practically all of the indices of the statisticians point upward, and there seems no reason to believe the recovery will halt its upward swing in 1936.

WILLIAM A. LAW, president, Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co.—One of the most encouraging signs is the disposition of private industry to assume the leadership in the march to recovery, and the returning faith of the general public in the ability of industry to provide the leadership.

TED V. RODGERS, president, American Trucking Association—Trucking last year obtained recognition as one of the country's major industries. Congress recognized it when it passed the regulatory bill, placing interstate operators under jurisdiction of the I. C. C.

BERTRAM B. CADDIE, secretary, Copper and Brass Research association—Volume of business in the building field during 1936 will more than double that of 1935, with result that perhaps 200,000,000 pounds of copper will be consumed.

ALLEYS ARE SUCCESSFUL

The Athletic club bowling alleys are enjoying much activity in their first year—Leagues are active a couple of nights a week, and each evening finds a number of keggers loosening up their wings with 14-pound balls flying toward the pins—Managers of the alleys, Bob Campbell of the big pins and Charlie Campbell (no relation), of the ducks, have shown a lot of interest in the success of the alleys * * * diately after entraining again. They are due in Pasadena tomorrow morning.

Fans believe that Coach Madison Bell is more optimistic over the chances for the Ponies than usual, because he refrained from indicating the Mustangs might lose. His silence on the matter caused the Pony supporters to believe he thinks chances of victory are fairly good. He said his team was in fine physical condition, but not keyed up mentally as much as for some previous games.

Whiteman to Start New Variety Series on Jan. 5

Harry Richman to Be First Star of New Program; Ramona, Other "Stand-Bys" to Remain

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—A new musical variety program featuring Paul Whiteman and his troupe of entertainers, and a celebrated guest artist each week, will be inaugurated over an NBC-WJZ network on Sunday, January 5. The new weekly series will be heard from 9:45 to 10:30 p. m., E. S. T.

In the inaugural broadcast on January 5, Harry Richman, night club entertainer, will be the guest star. He will fly to New York from Hollywood, bringing with him a number of new songs, several of which he will sing at the broadcast.

Whiteman proposes in his new program to appeal to music lovers of every taste. Accordingly, he will feature both currently popular songs and his own original arrangements of works in the classical tradition.

Whiteman will be assisted in his weekly 45-minute programs by Ramona, glamorous singing pianist; Roy Bargy, versatile arranger and pianist; Durelle, petite songstress; Bob Lawrence, baritone; "The King's Men" and Johnny Hauser, vocalists. The personnel of the band includes such veteran musicians as Jack Teagarden, trombonist; Harry Goldfield, trumpet; Mat Malneck, composer; Mike Pingatore, banjoist. * * *

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—Blonde Helen Jepson, Metropolitan Opera soprano who was the first woman singer ever to join the Metropolitan as a direct result of her radio work, will be co-featured with James Melton, popular radio tenor, on a NBC-WJZ network on Sunday, at 2 p. m., E. S. T.

Miss Jepson recently returned from a picture-making expedition to Hollywood to begin her second season with the Metropolitan. She was signed by Gatti-Casazza for the first time early in the summer of 1934, after the famous director had heard her sing again and again on the air. He finally asked her to come over for an audition, and the contract followed.

PICKREL SILENT ABOUT HIS ELECTION WISHES
DAYTON, Dec. 27—(INS)—
Former Lieutenant Governor William G. Pickrel, had returned to his office today from Los Angeles, but he refused to discuss any phase of the forthcoming gubernatorial campaign.

When Pickrel resigned as state deputy superintendent of building and loan associations recently, it was suggested that his resignation might mean an intention to enter the race for the democratic nomination for governor.

He left soon afterward for the west coast, and returned Christmas eve, but his presence in the city was not known immediately by even his intimate friends.

Protesting that he knew nothing about the possible contest for the nomination, he refused to make any comment.

OPEN LETTERS

TO HOUSEWIVES

LADIES: This type of weather gives all of you an opportunity to become a Boy Scout, doing a good turn by feeding the birds that daily try to find food in the few bare spots existing after the snow. The only way these little fellows can obtain subsistence is through your efforts. Bread crumbs, suet, anything of this nature would be appreciated by the birds.

CIRCUITEER

TO CIRCLEVILLE-ANS

FOLK: Next Wednesday a new mayor and a new city administration will take office. It is your duty to yourselves and to your municipality to extend Mr. Graham and his aides a hand of welcome, and pledge them co-operation in their efforts to provide Circleville a modern and economical administration. The new mayor will find, I believe, that Circleville residents are fair, and that regardless of politics they will co-operate to make the city a better place in which to live. It is the duty of every person who calls himself a citizen to help promote Circleville.

CIRCUITEER

TO CHURCH LEADERS

TOWNSPEOPLE: The programs your choirs, members of your churches and Sunday schools presented for Christmas were pleasing to large crowds of the community's residents, and you are to be congratulated for your efforts. It was evident that many of the presentations required much time and effort. In several instances the attendance at the various performances was not as expected, but all on the programs provided everything expected of them. Pageants, cantatas, special music, pantomimes, preaching, and other forms of religious observance had their parts. Other programs are planned for the New Year, and then will come a lapse in musical and dramatic plans until Easter Sunday, April 12, when the climax in the church year will be reached.

CIRCUITEER

TO COMMUNITY SINGERS

ENTHUSIASTS: The need of a community choral club, or choir, to include Circleville and its surrounding territory has been shown oftentimes in the past several years. I was listening to one of the church choirs during the pre-Christmas period when the thought of such an organization presented itself. There are scores of fine voices in this community; there are persons who could capably organize, and others who could direct such a group. It has not been so long ago that Circleville was known far and wide for its fine music. The musicians have increased in number and versatility but no one has had the courage to start the wheels moving toward actual organization. It would be a great accomplishment for Circleville to boast of a fine choral club before another holiday season arrives.

CIRCUITEER

TO SLED RIDERS

FUN-SEEKERS: This is real winter weather we are having and fine for that grand, but dangerous, sport of sled riding. Those who enjoy this winter sport could keep it from being so dangerous if they would heed warnings to be more careful. It is great fun to ride sleds, but children are so often hurt because they do not stop to think that holding on bumpers of automobiles while riding sleds, and coasting on streets that lead into other main streets is entirely too dangerous to consider. Many of you received sleds for Christmas, but I ask you to be more careful when riding them.

TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS

FOLK: In this severe cold weather there is always the possibility of a fire causing heavy damage in rural districts. Bucket brigades and other make-shift methods are often useless but modern fire-fighting equipment has saved a number of farm homes. The townships should make arrangements with nearby fire departments to protect certain territories. Wells and cisterns may be used for the water supplies, and if farmers knew they would receive aid they could be prepared for such emergencies. The departments would have to charge for the trips but certainly they would be well worth the expense.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

GENTLEMEN: Why would it not be a good plan to offer a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the hog thieves who recently opened their campaign in the county. Two farmers have suffered heavy losses, in one instance the hogs were slaughtered and hauled away and in the other they were carried out of their pen. Recent action of two local courts in dealing with poultry thieves and shop lifters have taught lessons that will be remembered. If some of these hog thieves were brought to court and convicted this practice would soon stop. A reward often goes a long way in bringing about a criminal's arrest.

CIRCUITEER

CITY COUNCILMEN

GENTLEMEN: Your recent legislation in giving Police Chief William McCrady a $10 per-month salary increase was a sudden, and fine piece of work. Chief McCrady has been with the department many years; he has been efficient and has worked hard to give Circleville proper and well organized police protection. The office of the chief carries many responsibilities and he should receive more pay than the regular patrolmen.

CIRCUITEER

The nearest thing to the man biting the dog in recent years is the case of the alumnus who wanted pay from a football player to get the latter into the college.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Strategists in both major political parties undoubtedly are agreed on one matter—that former President Herbert Hoover made an error in trying to blame the 1932-33 bank crashes on fear of Roosevelt.

Mr. Hoover called attention to a subject people just were beginning to forget.

And he opened the way for the Democrats to spring his bank record on him—in contrast to President Roosevelt's.

Here is the record:

During the Hoover administration, 6,038 banks were forced to close (aside from the closing temporarily of all banks).

Of those, merely 703 were closed after Mr. Roosevelt had been elected.

Under three Republican presidents—Messrs. Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—there were 10,504 bank closings.

During the Roosevelt administration, merely 179 banks that were relicensed in 1933 have been closed.

And 1934 and 1935 have made new low records—67 and 29, respectively.

There has been no major bank failure during the Roosevelt administration. Instead, many that previously had been closed have been paying off depositors—of whom this writer is one.

IS NATION SOUND?

Bankers are more concerned over excess reserves. Banks hold too much government paper. That is the reason bankers are tremendously interested in a balanced budget.

But balanced budgets have not been possible since the depression began. The government has had to carry on where industry has failed or has been unable to.

It is no secret that the Roosevelt administration hopes for a balanced budget. But it has the necessity of caring for 11 million jobless.

See that they get private jobs? That is the administration's chief prayer. Its spending and excess reserves were and are to prime the pump—but the jobless are not employed.

The fiscal policies of both the Hoover and the Roosevelt administrations have, in the large sense, failed of their purpose. As a matter of fact, both presidents seemed bewildered men economically. Yet, their critics in the major parties seem to offer no real solution.

The fiscal policies have failed, men to the left say, because the social structure has been left unrepaired—and men fear to modernize it.

Certain it is, economists assert, neither spending nor the cessation of spending will be a solution. Either one may bring on a panic.

AN INSTANCE

The largest steel corporations are spending tens of millions on new strip mills.

That isn't because business warrants such huge additions. That spending is done because it will greatly reduce the cost of steel strips. Machines will do the labor of hundreds of men.

Now, if the cost of the finished product drops so that far greater and wider buying power will develop, men out of jobs may be absorbed gradually. But if the price of the finished product remains high, then men will not be absorbed.

The wisest plan would be not only for the price to be lowered but for the earnings of the workers to rise correspondingly as the earnings of the corporation rises.

Will that occur? Will it be considered "too much" of a step toward socialization?

If not, more men, not fewer, will have to be kept on relief, and relief is paid for out of taxes.

MURDER UPSTAIRS

ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:

Lieutenant Kirk Larrabee is investigating the murder of Andrew Darien, middle-aged bachelor who was stabbed to death with a carving knife as he slept in the dining room of Alice Penny. After questioning Alice, the seven remaining boarders, the maid and cook, Larrabee learns that Darien was generally disliked. Alice is amazed when the detective tells her she will inherit $200,000 through Darien's will. Dr. Rademacher, a psychiatrist, who has been treating Lucy Upham, Alice's old friend, fears that Lucy may have committed the murder. Alice learns that two of her boarders, Janet Bell and Martin Hemingway, have quarreled. Hemingway tells Lieutenant Larrabee he heard Miss Bell threaten to kill Darien the night he was slain. Janet refuses to tell the detective why she was in Darien's room shortly before the murder occurred. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 28

THE GIRL was almost the old Janet for a moment, her eyes softening, her lips quivering after apologizing for causing me "so much trouble." Larrabee repeated my question about what Hemingway had said to her.

"Martin told me this afternoon that if I married him, he wouldn't tell anybody that he had heard me threaten to kill Mr. Darien Monday night. I told him to go ahead, tell everybody, that I didn't care, and I wouldn't marry him if he was the last man on earth. He's been trying to—"

I knew. Martin Hemingway had been proposing to her since she came to the house.

"But I didn't think he'd tell—"

"I didn't think he would, if he really loved me, as he said."

She didn't know Mr. Hemingway as I did. He was made that way, sneaky, small-minded. I was glad something had happened to show him in his real colors at last.

We left her there, but I made her promise first that she'd come down to dinner that night. It wasn't good for her to be sitting upstairs moping by herself.

"What do you think, Mrs. Penny?" Larrabee asked when we were in the hall.

"Janet didn't kill Mr. Darien," I answered, firmly. "In the first place she wouldn't have the strength—"

"You're wrong there, Mrs. Penny. The point of that carving knife of yours is so sharp it wouldn't take much strength to force it into Darien's heart."

"I think if Miss Bell had been angry enough, she would have had plenty of strength in those frail looking hands of hers—provided, of course, she didn't have to struggle with Darien. But there was no struggle when he was killed. He was asleep in his bed, and the murderer calmly removed the blankets from his chest, found the right place for the blow and struck."

I stumbled over the rug and Kirk Larrabee's arm kept me from falling.

"Don't like to have me talk about the murder, do you, Mrs. Penny?"

"What about Janet Bell, then? What do you know about her?"

"I told you Tuesday morning all I knew about her. She's a nice girl, well-mannered, quiet, respectable."

"How did she happen to come to you—how recommended her?"

"Mr. Brown, the lawyer she works for, was an old friend of my husband. She came to him from New York, and he suggested she live with me. I didn't have a room for her at first, but as soon as one was vacant, I let her know. But there's nothing mysterious about Janet—"

"Apparently there is, Mrs. Penny, or else she would have told me who Darien's note said, why she went to see him, what they talked about. Mark my words, your Janet has a secret that somehow has a bearing on this case. If I know women, she won't give it up easily. I'm going to let you work on her tonight and see what you can do about it. She trusts you, and she might tell you things she refuses to tell me. See?"

I saw, but I wasn't satisfied.

"Then what are you going to do with her?"

"I'm going to talk her over with Captain Murray tonight at headquarters and see what he says. If he says to arrest her, I'll have to do it, of course."

"Janet never killed Mr. Darien!" He smiled at me.

"And Mrs. Upham didn't kill him, either, nor Mrs. Starnott, nor Miss Cambridge, nor Withers, nor Hemingway, nor Talbot! By the way, Mrs. Penny, Miss Cambridge came to me this morning with an interesting theory. Seems that the principal of her school suggested it."

"I know," I interrupted. "She told me this morning. About Mr. Anderson. Well, George Anderson is in San Francisco, and I have his forwarding address if you want it. I'm positive you'll find him where he's supposed to be. He and Mr. Darien didn't get along any too well, but George Anderson isn't a killer. He's a mild-mannered advertising man, who always wears rubbers when it rains, and keeps bicarbonate of soda in his room. Had a bad for eating only vegetables. Grace was glad when he went because she always had to cook something special for him. And he never ate any pastry."

"I'll have his address in San Francisco, all the same."

I looked it up for him in my book and went into the kitchen. Delia was standing by the knife drawer, a puzzled look on her florid face.

"You've got the old carving knife, haven't you, Mrs. Penny?"

"No? Why, no! I gave Grace all the knives this morning. I haven't seen any of them since." I tried to speak calmly but my heart was pounding against my ribs. I could hear it as I bent over the knife drawer.

"What's this?" Grace came over, her hands full of flour.

"Where did you put the carving knife, Grace?" I demanded, quickly. "The old carving knife, the one you sharpened yesterday!"

"Why, in the drawer of course, Mrs. Penny, with the others. It was there an hour ago. I looked especially, because I took out the vegetable knife."

The knife wasn't in the drawer, but I searched thoroughly. I even took up the oilcloth at the bottom, although I knew it couldn't be hidden there.

"I've been looking in the drawer off and on all day. Mrs. Penny and counting those knives. I tell you it must be there! It was an hour ago!" Grace cried.

My knees got weak as I told Delia to look everywhere in the kitchen for it. Grace joined the search, too, but I couldn't. I could just sit and look at the open drawer where the knife should have been.

"When did you see the knife last, Delia?"

"A few hours ago, ma'am. It was there in the drawer. When I looked just now, I thought you might have taken it away."

"I didn't," I said, wearily. "Did you use the knife today, Grace?"

"No, Mrs. Penny, but I need it now. A minute before you came in I told Delia to get it for me."

We looked in the pantry, in the dining room, on the back porch, once more all through the kitchen, but the knife had disappeared. Grace was waiting that only an hour ago, at 5 to be exact—she had seen it in the drawer. Delia was getting greener and greener. I knew what she was thinking about. I was thinking the same thing myself. That the knife had been stolen. That someone else might die.

"Who's been in the kitchen—since you saw the knife?" I demanded of Grace.

"Miss Bell came in a little while ago for some ice. She wanted it to bathe her eyes. I got it for her."

She put up her floury hands and started counting off on her fingers. "It didn't seem to me that she went near the knife drawer, but I had my back turned at the ice-box. Then, Mrs. Upham was in a little later to show me the pink jacket she was making. And Miss Cambridge came down to ask for an empty bottle for some lotion she was mixing."

"I found her one in the cupboard. Doesn't seem to me that either Mrs. Upham or Miss Cambridge went near the knife drawer—but I can't be sure."

"Anyone else?"

"Mr. Withers, Mr. Hemingway and Mr. Talbot all came in the back door after 5. They were out in the garden playing ball. I gave them some cookies and they stayed a few minutes."

"Were any of them near the knife drawer?"

Grace thought for a moment. "Mr. Withers was leaning against it, I think."

"And that is all?"

"Yes, ma'am. That's all."

Delia spoke up. "Mrs. Starnott was down, too, ma'am. Grace probably forgot her."

AT THE GRAND

Dieting, riding bicycles, roller-skating and other forms of exercise may be popular with film actresses, but ZaSu Pitts does nothing but play solitaire to keep thin—and she hasn't varied five pounds in eighteen years!

Miss Pitts, co-starred with Hugh O'Connell in Universal's laugh fest, "The Affair of Susan," coming to the Grand theatre, declares that she's just one of those lucky people who never have to worry about extra pounds. If anything, she asserts, the strenuous comedy work which she does keeps her weight down to normal.

Recrudescence of the newspaper's Anglophobia, which was the subject of two British protests to Rome, and was Britain's official excuse for concentrating her two major fleets in the Mediterranean, is of high importance in the present tension, bringing Europe back to the frantically nervous days when sanctions-enforcing Britain was first singled out as Italy's "enemy number one."

Italian troops from Ethiopian territory.

2. Payment of indemnity by Italy.

3. Recognition of Ethiopia as a sovereign state by the big powers.

4. Delimitation of the frontiers between Ethiopia and the Italian colonies.

5. Acceptance of foreign non-Italian economic and financial administrative advisors.

Drawing up of the emperor's peace terms at this time, following Ethiopian victories in which the Italians were forced to withdraw from their front lines, was considered significant.

Ethiopia Winning
There was nothing in the program for Italy. It was said the Negus might waive the indemnity provision, but that the other items constituted a minimum. It was apparent the emperor believes he is winning his war.

The Ethiopian victory north of Makale, which occurred yesterday, and was first reported today, tended to strengthen the belief in the capital.

ROME, Dec. 27.—(INS)—The Italian government today denied officially and emphatically an Ethiopian announcement that the Italian armies had been routed north of Makale.

TED HAS REAL FAN

Ted Lewis has a real fan. During a recent engagement of the vaudeville star and his band in Los Angeles, a fair admirer from Bakersville, 100 miles away, hung up a record by sitting through all 31 performances.

After paying 18 admissions, she became the guest of the management, to whom she confided that in the past eight years she has never missed a Lewis performance given within traveling distance of her home.

ised the Chicago area today. Government Forecaster A. W. Cook said the mercury would reach a low of five below zero early, and then would gradually climb to a high of approximately 10 above this afternoon. Tomorrow, he said, winter's icy grasp is expected to loosen even more, with a high of 20 degrees above zero anticipated.

Much Coal Distributed

Last night the mercury stayed below the zero line, sending hundreds of homeless and destitute to police stations and relief shelters in search of warmth. Charitable organizations distributed hundreds of tons of coal to poor families.

Ice-coated pavements and the sub-zero temperatures kept streets deserted last night. The usual holiday festivities at hotels and night clubs were sparsely attended.

A frozen body found in a snow drift on Chicago's northwest side presented police with a murder mystery today. The unidentified man had been shot through the head. His hat and overcoat were missing, leading authorities to believe he had been murdered elsewhere and uncereemoniously dumped into the snowdrift, probably in a renewal of the feud between peddlers of illicit alcohol.

Chicago suburbs received the brunt of the cold wave yesterday, with readings as low as six below reported. Last night the mercury hovered around the two below level in the loop.

In downstate Illinois highway traffic was resumed today, after being blocked for 24 hours by great snow drifts.

LETTERS ISSUED

Naval Forces to Be Increased Over 10,000 By Duce as Race Re-Opens

DEFEATED CAUSE

Front Near Border of English Possession Controlled By Airmen

ROME, Dec. 27.—(INS)—Blaming Britain for supplying arms to Ethiopia, the Italian press reopened its offensive against Britain for the first time since the now dead Italo-Ethiopian peace negotiations started weeks ago, while Italy lengthened her stride in the preparedness race with London and Geneva.

Several thousand additional aviation experts are to be summoned for duty within two days; 10,000 to 15,000 more naval officers and specialists have already been mobilized this week, and "further orders of a sensational character" to expedite the Ethiopian campaign were expected "momentarily."

"Menacing clouds on the horizon threaten to change into a storm," warned the official organ of Italian opinion, Osservatore Romano.

Italian fighting planes at the front are concentrating their attention on Ethiopian columns near the frontier of Britain's crown colony of Kenya in order to cut off supplies of arms and ammunition flowing in "with the complacent aid of the colony's government," wrote General Ambrogio Bollati, military expert for the newspaper Piccolo.

GOVERNOR ASKS EXPERTS TO TEST BRUNO FOR TRUTH

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 27.—(INS)—Reports were current early today that a "lie detector" expert has been invited by Governor Harold Hoffman to conduct a test on Bruno Richard Hauptmann, awaiting execution for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

The governor, it was reported, wrote an invitation to the expert yesterday.

The letter, it was said, had been addressed to Ann Arbor, Mich.

It was pointed out that should the unidentified expert accept the governor's invitation Hauptmann could not be subjected to the test until permission had first been obtained from Supreme Court Justice Thomas Trenchard, who presided at the Carpenter's Flemington trial.

WAITRESS ABDUCTED

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 27.—(INS)—Marjorie Bragg, 18-year-old Lexington, Neb., waitress, was kidnapped early today by two gunmen who robbed and released her escort.

The escort, Delbert Slack, 23, truckman, was robbed of $40, his automobile and watch, and released at a school house. He reported the abduction at 8 a. m.

DAVIS HELD FOR JURY

Alvin Davis, 24, plasterer living on Maplewood-ave, was bound to the grand jury Thursday under $200 bond by Mayor W. B. Cady for assault and battery. The charge against Davis was filed by Albert Ogan, his father-in-law.

Police said Davis severely beat his wife. He was released on bond.

Zasu Pitts Testifies

AMONG witnesses called by Los Angeles authorities in their investigation of the Thelma Todd mystery was Zasu Pitts, screen comedienne and one-time comedy partner of the blond actress. Miss Pitts, who accompanied Thelma to a hat shop several days before she died, told investigators that "I never saw Thelma happier in her life than that day. We went shopping and Thelma bought a lot of Christmas wrapping and seals and I am sure she expected to be alive and observe Christmas."

Zasu Pitts Scheduled; Report of Fight With Man Probed

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.—(INS)—A new "mystery man"—One who climaxed an argument by striking Thelma Todd a few days before she died—was sought by officials here today as the latest figure in the startling investigation of the strange death of the beautiful blonde actress.

Reports of the fight, which is said to have taken place in Miss Todd's gay sidewalk cafe in the presence of a staff of waiters and bartenders, were being studied by district attorney's investigators today as the Los Angeles co grand jury continued its investigation into possible "murder by monoxide" of the actress.

Before resuming their sessions today, members of the grand jury visited the important scenes in the case. These included the Side-walk cafe, owned jointly by Roland West, former film director, and Miss Todd; the actress' swank apartment adjoining one in which

ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 27.—(INS)—Ethiopian troops, striking deep behind the Italian lines, have cut off Italian communications with the important northern city of Makale, the government announced today, after fighting in which the Italians were routed leaving between 30 and 100 dead.

At the same time, as a result of this and other recent Ethiopian victories on the northern front, Emperor Haile Selassie was semi-officially reported to have drawn up a five-point program of peace terms which would net Italy virtually nothing and which are set forth as the minimum terms upon which the Negus would negotiate a peace.

Here is the reported peace program, embodying drastic Ethiopian demands which are a far cry from the now-dead Hoare-Laval peace proposals which would have given half of Ethiopia to Italy

ROOSEVELT AIDES STUDYING BONUS TO WIN APPROVAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—(INS)—Democratic leaders moved swiftly today to unite opposing congressional factions behind a soldiers' bonus bill acceptable to President Roosevelt.

Determined to capture the veterans' vote in the forthcoming presidential election, Democratic officials are anxious to enact a measure that will not run afoul of a White House veto.

Fearful that bonus legislation can be passed over the president's veto, numerous Democrats in both chambers consider it wiser politically to draft a bill carrying the president's favor.

Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee which handles bonus legislation, indicated he would seek to work out a compromise proposal through a series of conferences between various veterans blocs and Mr. Roosevelt.

LAVAL DEFENDS PEACE EFFORTS IN PLEA TODAY

Vote of Confidence to Be Taken By Deputies at Conclusion of Address

PARIS, Dec. 27.—(INS)—With his fate as premier at stake, Pierre Laval gave the Chamber of Deputies a detailed defense of his foreign policy as debate on it opened in the chamber of deputies today.

"I have taken grave responsibilities," he said. "I endeavored to clear up the atmosphere between Italy and Britain. I did everything to make pacific solutions prevail."

With a vote of confidence due at the close of the debate, which may last through tomorrow, Laval defended in particular the now-dead Hoare-Laval peace proposals. Of these he said:

The Paris proposals are considered dead. The Ethiopian and Italian governments did not show the alacrity and comprehension we were entitled to expect.

Defending the peace plan he and Sir Samuel Hoare, now resigned British foreign minister, had devised to end the east African war, Laval cited the fear that Italy would interpret an oil embargo as an act of war, and that he and Sir Samuel had tried to obviate its necessity.

Laval's defense of his peace plan was similar to that Sir Samuel made in the House of Commons after he had resigned. In fact, Laval quoted from Hoare's speech today.

Laval also hinted that his action was designed to prevent Italy from quitting the league in anger, as Japan and Germany did.

Firemen Crowd Hospitals After South Bend Blaze

Legionnaires Man City Trucks as Fighters Suffer Agony; Nine Freeze to Death in Chicago Area

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—(INS)—Nine deaths from freezing, deaths attributed to exposure and accidents, a disastrous $250,000 fire, hundreds hospitalized, and untold suffering and misery were attributed to old man winter today as he continued to hold the Chicago area in a tight icy grasp.

At South Bend, Ind., practically every member of the city's fire department was hospitalized today, after fighting a quarter of a million dollar fire for 16 hours before finally bringing it under control early today. Members of the American Legion manned South Bend fire equipment today.

Many Firemen Frozen

The fire started in a ten cent store waste basket, spread with lightning rapidity to a bank and three stores, and for a time threatened the entire business district. Firemen suffered intense agony as water from their steaming hoses froze and encased them in sheaths of ice. Some of the fire ladders, falling with sheer exhaustion, had to have their clothes hacked from their bodies. Many received treatment at a Red Cross emergency first aid station and a half dozen times before being carried to ambulances and rushed to hospitals.

Freezing to death of nine persons brought the Chicago death toll to 11. In addition many deaths were indirectly attributable to the sub-zero temperatures—traffic accidents, skidding, exposure, falls on icy walks and pavements.

A measure of relief was promised.

Industrial Leaders Predicting Continued Recovery

By INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
Hailing the great improvement in business this year, industrial leaders today predicted continuation of the upward swing of recovery in 1936.

The part played by natural recuperative forces was stressed. Excerpts from the statements follow:

CHARLES W. NASH, chairman, Nash Motors Co.—Prospects for the coming year are rosy. Continued improvement in farm economics is one factor encouraging an optimistic prediction for 1936. Another is a widely spread and progressively increasing liberalization of personal and corporate expenditures for additions and replacements.

Automobile production schedules for 1936 have been fixed well above those of 1935. It is difficult at this time to perceive any possibility of curtailment; on the other hand it is entirely possible we will find that industry has been too conservative in its planning.

WARD MELVILLE, president, Melville Shoe Corp.—With natural forces helping the trend toward recovery, retail business should be generally good throughout 1936.

Production in nearly all lines has been notably increased; confidence is at a higher level than for four years, and if advancing prices, due to higher costs of raw materials, do not outstrip the public's capacity to pay, the resulting business should be healthier than at any time since the United States entered the depression.

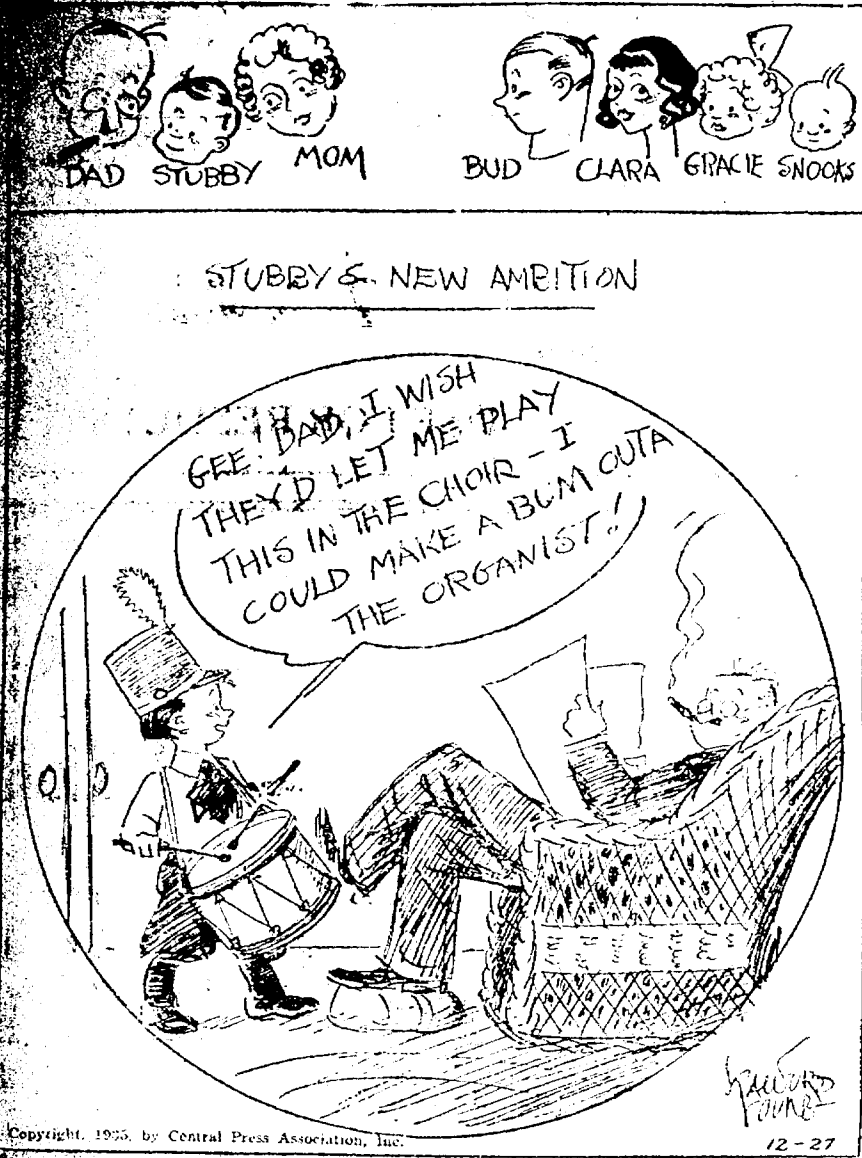

T. A. BUCKNER, president New York Life Insurance Co.—Improved business conditions and a revival of public confidence during the past year lead me to anticipate further gains in 1936. For a reversal of the present downward trend in interest rates of high-grade securities, we must look forward to the stimulation of general business with an increased demand for capital such as usually follows recovery from a period of economic depression.

JOSEPH WILSHIRE, president, Standard Brands, Inc.—The food business turned definitely upward during the last six months of the year and indications are that, barring fundamental interruptions to business in general, this upward trend should continue. There has been a noticeable improvement in demand for quality THIRTEEN times in one thousand hands a 5-4-4-0 hand appears. To hold such a hand, with all suits bid, is a vast rarity. However, such a holding was dealt to himself by South, and each suit was so strong that he felt obliged to make an opening bid of 2 Clubs, wanting to make certain that bidding would be kept alive until game could be reached at some suit. Had he known that West would overcall whatever was bid, South might have bid 1-Club, then doubled that call, asking partner to pick his own best suit.

Of course the opening lead was the K of diamonds. Declarer ruffed. Not having the benefit of double-dummy knowledge South lost his K of hearts to the lone Ace. Then he had to ruff

the Q of diamonds with the 10 of hearts.

To fulfill the game contract clubs had to be established, or dummy would have a losing spade trick for defenders. The Ace and K of clubs were led. Dummy ruffed the 3 of clubs. East overrudded with the 8. The 5 of diamonds was led back and declarer ruffed with his last trump, but dummy still held 3 trumps and had no more diamonds. The 6 of clubs was ruffed by both dummy and East, giving defenders their third trick.

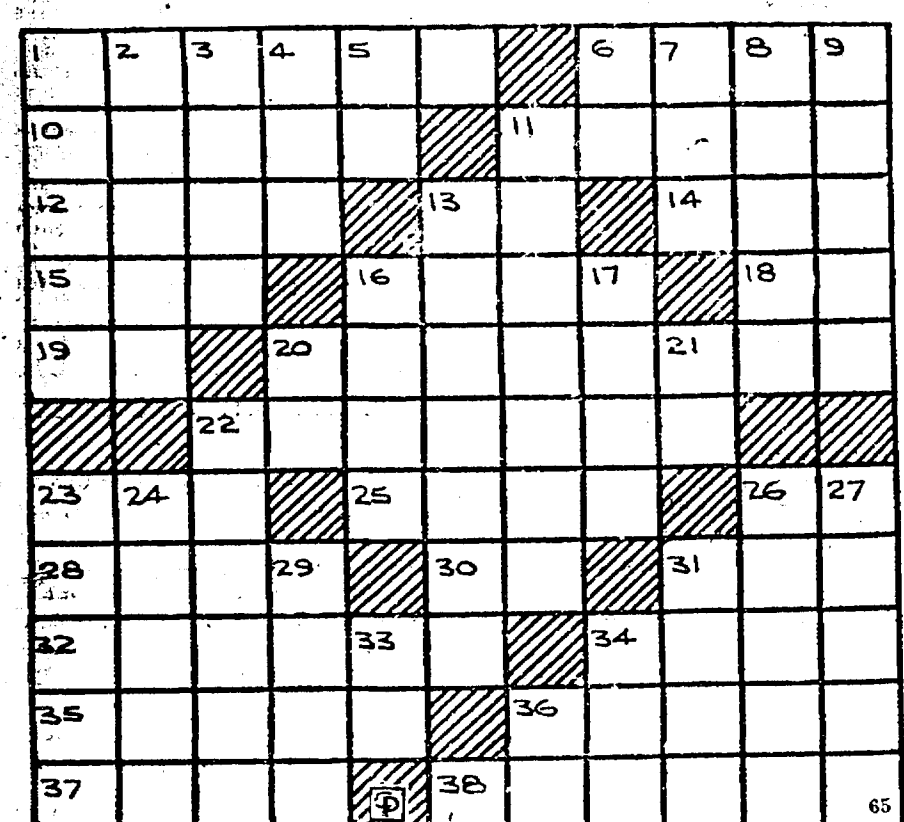

Declarer's troubles were over now. Dummy held 2 long trumps and 3 spades. Declarer held a long club and 4 spades. No matter what East led back declarer's Ace and K of spades, and long club must win 3 tricks, while dummy's 2 long trumps were good for the 2 remaining tricks, just giving 4-odd, doubled.

GRID MENTORS MAY DO LITTLE ABOUT 'SALARY'

Subsidizing May Be Untouched in Session; McGugin
Offers Three Changes

By DAVIS J. WALSH
NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(INS)—In spite of some pretty suggestive advance billing which seemed to assume that the subject was not without novelty, I understand that the National Collegiate Athletic association will do very little, if anything, today about the supposed proposal that college football players be formally paid off by voucher. Perhaps I could have amplified this statement by saying that the National Collegiate Athletic association will do very little, if anything, today.

Anyhow, some of its spokesmen assure me that among the things it will not do is take either a positive or negative position on what was presumed to be the attitude of the Southeastern conference toward football subsidization. In the first place, the N. C. A. just has the debating privilege here. In the second, there are too many institutions who would not greatly care to have this sensitive subject paraded before the press.

No Planned Attack
Of course, some crank may see this idea as a great chance to hit the headlines and will thereupon read some rapid and incendiary lines into the record. But, at this moment, there is no planned attack on football subsidizing any more than there will be a planned attempt next fall to persuade the public that 80,000 crowds are really unfashionable.

In other words, there may be an enfeebled bleak or two from the reformers today, but I think football can be depended upon to go on paying its players or not paying them, strictly according to taste and expediency.

In the same way, the football coaches can be depended upon to do more and accomplish less to do than any other body, largely because football coaches, by the nature of things, are very oral and very helpless. They have no administrative standing, so Chick McHugh's announced program for moving the goal posts returned to the goal line and Dan McGugin's three-year plan will fall upon appreciative but futile ears.

Would Change Rule
Mr. McGugin, first, would have a 15 yard penalty for pass interference, rather than giving the ball to the attacking team at the point of the foul, a penalty which, in some cases, might be tougher to call than the present rule. He would further modify the rule which forfeits possession of the ball at the point where an ineligible player is struck by a forward pass and also wants something done about the modern practice of roughing the passer.

Thornhill Picks Eleven To Start Rose Bowl Tilt

Moscrip on Team; Confidence Reigns in Camp of Big Red; Defense Against Pass Attack Studied

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 27—(INS)—Stanford's Big Red machine today resumed work in an attempt to bolster its defense against Southern Methodist's passing attack, during a practice session scheduled at Brookside park.

The Indians arrived here yesterday, and during the afternoon workout, Ernie Nevers—in Mustang formations—completed far too many passes against the variety to satisfy the coaching staff. They showed plenty of class in all other departments yesterday, with the workout being featured by Bill Paulman's kicking.

Boots 70 Yarders
The stocky blond sent the pigskin spiraling 65 and 70 yards down the field with such height that even as fine a safety man as Jimmy Coffis had trouble catching the punts. Paulman's efforts were from quick kick formations and not even Frank Alustiza, who was standing nearby, could have produced better results.

"Monk" Moscrip, injured end, was to resume his place in the lineup today and felt certain he would be able to last most of the game against the Mustangs. In his last practice at Palo Alto, the all-American flankman sent the pigskin between the posts on 30 consecutive kicks from the 30-yard line. With Moscrip absent from yesterday's practice, his berth was filled by the diminutive Alex Trompas who displayed much speed in going down the field under Paulman's punts.

Keith Topping, right end, also exhibited speed and spent much time in grabbing passes out of the air with the gracefulness of Tris Speaker fielding a fly ball.

Team Is Chosen
Coach "Tiny" Thornhill definitely decided upon the starting lineup of the Reds, with Moscrip and Topping, ends; Reynolds and Beedle, tackles; Roubie and Adams, guards; Muller, center; Paulman, quarter; Hamilton and Coffis, halfback; and Grayson, fullback.

The boys, in perfect physical shape with exception of Moscrip, exhibited a quiet confidence of victory, with none of the over-confidence of the Columbia game nor the careless attitude shown against Alabama.

Wood, Walter Hagen and a score of others today were shooting at the 68 recorded yesterday by Al "Butch" Krueger, Beloit golf and baseball professional, in the first round of the Pasadena open tournament at Brookside park.

Krueger, still smarting from the decision that cost him a stroke in the southern California open at Oakmont, Monday, was hitting them far and straight yesterday at Brookside and his score could well have been a couple of strokes better than that turned in.

Trailing Krueger by one stroke yesterday was the Ogden, Utah professional, George Schneider, with a 69, while professionals Ray Mangrum and Les Madison and Amateur Henry Batista, another product of Pasadena's public links, had cards of 70.

Qualifying play in the Pasadena event's first round is strung out over three days and will be concluded tomorrow.

E. T. WEIR, chairman, National Steel Corp.—If purely business factors were all that had to be considered in appraising the present situation or the prospects of the immediate future, we should have every reason to believe the impressive business gains of 1935 have been made on solid ground. The only serious obstacle to a sustained upward movement is the continuance of political interference with the normal workings of the business system.

ROBERT C. STANLEY, president International Nickel Co.—Statistics for the first 10 months of 1935 indicate the current year's business will be the largest in the history of the nickel industry. OPEN LETTERS

TO HOUSEWIVES

LADIES: This type of weather gives all of you an opportunity to become a Boy Scout, doing a good turn by feeding the birds that daily try to find food in the few bare spots existing after the snow. The only way these little fellows can obtain subsistence is through your efforts. Bread crumbs, suet, anything of this nature would be appreciated by the birds.

CIRCUITEER

TO CIRCLEVILLE-ANS

FOLK: Next Wednesday a new mayor and a new city administration will take office. It is your duty to yourselves and to your municipality to extend Mr. Graham and his aides a hand of welcome, and pledge them co-operation in their efforts to provide Circleville a modern and efficient administration. The new mayor will find, I believe, that Circleville residents are fair, and that regardless of politics they will co-operate to make the city a better place in which to live. It is the duty of every person who calls himself a citizen to help promote Circleville.

CIRCUITEER

TO CHURCH LEADERS

TOWNSPEOPLE: The programs your choirs, members of your churches and Sunday schools presented for Christmas were pleasing to large crowds of the community's residents, and you are to be congratulated for your efforts. It was evident that many of the presentations required much time and effort. In several instances the attendance at the various performances was not as expected, but all on the programs provided everything expected of them, Pageants, cantatas, special music, pantomimes, preaching, and other forms of religious observance had their parts. Other programs are planned for the New Year, and then will come a lapse in musical and dramatic plans until Easter Sunday, April 12, when the climax in the church year will be reached.

CIRCUITEER

TO COMMUNITY SINGERS

ENTHUSIASTS: The need of a community choral club, or choir, to include Circleville and its surrounding territory has been shown oftentimes in the past several years. I was listening to one of the church choirs during the pre-Christmas period when the thought of such an organization presented itself. There are scores of fine voices in this community; there are persons who could capably organize, and others who could direct such a group. It has not been so long ago that Circleville was known far and wide for its fine music. The musicians have increased in number and versatility but no one has had the courage to start the wheels moving toward actual organization. It would be a great accomplishment for Circleville to boast of a fine choral club before another holiday season arrives.

CIRCUITEER

TO SLED RIDERS

FUN-SEEKERS: This is real winter weather we are having and fine for that grand, but dangerous, sport of sled riding. Those who enjoy this winter sport could keep it from being so dangerous if they would heed warnings to be more careful. It is great fun to ride sleds, but children are so often hurt because they do not stop to think that holding on bumpers of automobiles while riding sleds, and coasting on streets that lead into other main streets is entirely too dangerous to consider. Many of you received sleds for Christmas, but I ask you to be more careful when riding them.

TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS

FOLK: In this severe cold weather there is always the possibility of a fire causing heavy damage in rural districts. Bucket brigades and other make-shift methods are often useless but modern fire-fighting equipment has saved a number of farm homes. The townships should make arrangements with nearby fire departments to protect certain territories. Wells and cisterns may be used for the water supplies, and if farmers knew they would receive aid they could be prepared for such emergencies. The departments would have to charge for the trips but certainly they would be well worth the expense.

CIRCUITEER

TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

GENTLEMEN: Why would it not be a good plan to offer a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the hog thieves who recently opened their campaign in the county. Two farmers have suffered heavy losses, in one instance the hogs were slaughtered and hauled away and in the other they were carried out of their pen. Recent action of two local courts in dealing with poultry thieves and shop lifters have taught lessons that will be remembered. If some of these hog thieves were brought to court and convicted this practice would soon stop. A reward often goes a long way in bringing about a criminal's arrest.

CIRCUITEER

CITY COUNCILMEN

GENTLEMEN: Your recent legislation in giving Police Chief William McCrady a $10 per-month salary increase was a sudden, and fine piece of work. Chief McCrady has been with the department many years; he has been efficient and has worked hard to give Circleville proper and well organized police protection. The office of the chief carries many responsibilities and he should receive more pay than the regular patrolmen.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Strategists in both major political parties undoubtedly are agreed on one matter—that former President Herbert Hoover made an error in trying to blame the 1932-33 bank crashes on fear of Roosevelt.

Mr. Hoover called attention to a subject people just were beginning to forget.

And he opened the way for the Democrats to spring his bank record on him—in contrast to President Roosevelt's.

Here is the record:
During the Hoover administration, 6,038 banks were forced to close (aside from the closing temporarily of all banks).

Of those, merely 703 were closed after Mr. Roosevelt had been elected.

Under three Republican presidents—McCarr, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—there were 10,504 closings.

Under the Roosevelt administration, 179 banks that had been closed in 1933 have been reopened.

And 1935 have made 10,504 closings.

No major bank has closed since Hoover's death, many that have closed have been paying off depositors—of whom this writer is one.

IS NATION SOUND?

Bankers are more concerned over excess reserves. Banks hold too much government paper. That is the reason bankers are tremendously interested in a balanced budget.

But balanced budgets have not been possible since the depression began. The government has had to carry on where industry has failed or has been unable to.

It is no secret that the Roosevelt administration hopes for a balanced budget. But it has the necessity of caring for 11 million jobless.

See that they get private jobs? That is the administration's chief prayer. Its spending and excess reserves were and are to prime the pump—but the jobless are not employed.

The fiscal policies of both the Hoover and the Roosevelt administrations have, in the large sense, failed of their purpose. As a matter of fact, both presidents seemed bewildered men economically. Yet, their critics in the major parties seem to offer no real solution.

The fiscal policies have failed, men to the left say, because the social structure has been left un-repaired—and men fear to modernize it.

Certain it is, economists assert, neither spending nor the cessation of spending will be a solution. Either one may bring on a panic.

AN INSTANCE

The largest steel corporations are spending tens of millions on new strip mills.

That isn't because business warrants such huge additions. That spending is done because it will greatly reduce the cost of steel strips. Machines will do the labor of hundreds of men.

Now, if the cost of the finished product drops so that far greater and wider buying power will be absorbed gradually. But if the price of the finished product remains high, then men will not be absorbed.

The wisest plan would be not only for the price to be lowered but for the earnings of the workers to rise correspondingly as the earnings of the corporation rises.

Will that occur? Will it be considered "too much" of a step toward socialization?

If not, more men, not fewer, will have to be kept on relief, and relief is paid for out of taxes.

MURDER UPSTAIRS

READ THIS FIRST:

Lieutenant Kirk Larrabee is investigating the murder of Andrew Darian, middle-aged bachelor who was stabbed to death with a carving knife as he slept in the boarding house of Alice Penny. After questioning Alice, the seven remaining boarders, the maid and cook, Larrabee learns that Darian was generally disliked. Alice is amazed when the detective tells her the girl inherited $200,000 through Darian's will. Dr. Rudemar, a psychiatrist, who has been treating Lucy Upham, Alice's old friend, fears that Lucy may have committed the murder. Alice learns that two of her boarders, Janet Bell and Martin Hemingway, have quarreled. Hemingway tells Larrabee he heard Miss Bell threaten to kill Darian the night he was slain. Janet refuses to tell the detective why she was in Darian's room shortly before the murder occurred. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 28

THE GIRL was almost the old Janet for a moment, her eyes softening, her lips quivering after apologizing for causing me "so much trouble." Larrabee repeated my question about what Hemingway had said to her.

"Martin told me this afternoon that if I married him, he wouldn't tell anybody that he had heard me threaten to kill Mr. Darian Monday night. I told him to go ahead, tell everybody, that I didn't care, and I wouldn't marry him if he was the last man on earth. He's been trying to—"

I knew, Martin Hemingway had been proposing to her since she came to the house.

"But I didn't think he'd tell—," she continued slowly. "I didn't think he would, if he really loved me, as he said."

She didn't know Mr. Hemingway as I did. He was made that way, sneaky, small-minded. I was glad something had happened to show him in his real colors at last.

We left her there, but I made her promise, first that she'd come down to dinner that night. It wasn't good for her to be sitting upstairs moping by herself.

"What do you think, Mrs. Penny?" Larrabee asked when we were in the hall.

"Janet didn't kill Mr. Darian," I answered, firmly. "In the first place, she wouldn't have the strength—"

"You're wrong there, Mrs. Penny. The point of that carving knife of yours is so sharp it wouldn't take much strength to force it into Darian's heart."

I think if Miss Bell had been angry enough to have plenty of strength to force that frail looking hands of hers—provided, of course, she didn't have to struggle with Darian. But there was no struggle when he was killed. He was asleep in his bed, and the murderer calmly removed the blankets from his chest, found the right place for the blow and struck."

I stumbled over the rug and Kirk Larrabee's arm kept me from falling.

"Don't like to have me talk about the murder, do you, Mrs. Penny?"

"No."

"What about Janet Bell, then? What do you know about her?"

"I told you Tuesday morning all I knew about her. She's a nice girl, well-mannered, quiet, respectable."

"How did she happen to come to you—who recommended her?"

"Mr. Brown, the lawyer she works for, was an old friend of my husband's. She came to him from New York, and he suggested she live with me. I didn't have a room for her at first, but as soon as one was vacant, I let her know. But there's nothing mysterious about Janet—"

"Apparently there is, Mrs. Penny, or else she would have told me what Darian's wife said when she went to see him, what she told about Mark my words, your Janet has a secret that somehow has a bearing on this case. If I know women, she won't give it up easily. I'm going to let you work on her tonight and see what you can do about it. She trusts you, and she might tell you things she refuses to tell me. See?"

I saw, but I wasn't satisfied.

"Then what are you going to do with her?"

"I'm going to talk her over with Captain Murray tonight at headquarters and see what he says. If he says to arrest her, I'll have to do it, of course."

"Janet never killed Mr. Darian!" He smiled at me.

"And Mrs. Upham didn't kill him, either, nor Mrs. Starbuck, nor Miss Cambridge, nor Withers, nor Hemingway, nor Talbot! By the way, Mrs. Penny, Miss Cambridge came to me this morning with an interesting theory. Seems that the principal of her school suggested it."

"I know," I interrupted. "She told me this morning. About Mr. Anderson. Well, George Anderson is in San Francisco, and I have his forwarding address if you want it. I'm positive you'll find him where he's supposed to be. He and Mr. Darian didn't get along any too well, but George Anderson isn't a killer. He's a mild-mannered advertising man, who always wears rubbers when it rains, and keeps a carbonate of soda in his room. Had a tad for eating only vegetables. Grace was glad when he went because she always had to cook something special for him. And he never ate any pastry."

"I'll have his address in San Francisco, all the same."

I looked it up for him in my book and went into the kitchen. Della was standing by the knife drawer, a puzzled look on her florid face.

"You've got the old carving knife, haven't you, Mrs. Penny?"

"Me? Why, no! I gave Grace all the knives this morning. I haven't any of them since." I tried to speak calmly, but my heart was pounding against my ribs. I could hear it as I bent over the knife drawer.

"What's this?" Grace came over, her hands full of flour.

"Where did you put the carving knife, Grace? I demanded, quickly. "The old carving knife, the one you sharpened yesterday!"

"Why, in the drawer of course. Mrs. Penny, with the others. It was there an hour ago. I looked especially, because I took out the vegetable knife."

The knife wasn't in the drawer, but I searched the cupboard. I even took up the oilcloth at the bottom, although I knew it couldn't be hidden there.

"I've been looking in the drawer off and on all day. Mrs. Penny and counting those knives. I tell you it must be there! It was an hour ago!" Grace cried.

My knees got weak as I told Della to look everywhere in the kitchen for it. Grace joined the search, too, but I couldn't. I could just sit and look at the open drawer where the knife should have been.

"When did you see the knife last, Della?"

"A few hours ago, ma'am. It was there in the drawer. When I looked just now, I thought you might have taken it away."

"I didn't," I said, wearily. "Did you use the knife today, Grace?"

"No, Mrs. Penny, but I need it now. A minute before you came in I told Della to get it for me."

We looked in the pantry, in the dining room, on the back porch, once more all through the kitchen, but the knife had disappeared. Grace was waiting that only an hour ago at 5 to be exact—she had seen it in the drawer. Della was getting greener and greener. I knew what she was thinking about. I was thinking the same thing myself. That the knife had been stolen. That someone else might die.

"Who has been in the kitchen—since you saw the knife?" I demanded of Grace.

"Miss Bell came in a little while ago for some tea. She wanted it to bathe her eyes. I got it for her."

She put up her floury hands and started counting off on her fingers. "It didn't seem to me that she went near the knife drawer, but I had my back turned at the ice-box. Then, Mrs. Upham was in a little later to show me the pink jacket she is making. And Miss Cambridge came down to ask for an empty bottle for some lotion she was mixing."

"I found her one in the cupboard. Doesn't seem to me that either Mrs. Upham or Miss Cambridge went near the knife drawer—but I can't be sure."

"Anyone else?"

"Mr. Withers, Mr. Hemingway and Mr. Talbot all came in the back door after 5. They were out in the garden playing ball. I gave them some cookies and they stayed a few minutes."

"Were any of them near the knife drawer?"

"Grace thought for a moment. "Mr. Withers was leaning against it, I think."

"And that is all?"

"Yes, ma'am. That's all."

Della spoke up. "Mrs. Starbuck was down, too, ma'am. Grace probably forgot her."

Business Women Have Annual Holiday Party

14 Members Enjoy Social Hours and Gift Exchange

A lovely Christmas party was enjoyed by members of the Business and Professional Women's club Thursday evening in the club rooms.

Red candles and a prettily decorated tree lighted the rooms where fourteen members were gathered for the affair.

A brief business session was conducted by Miss Charlotte Phelps, president, and a happy informal social evening followed. The group sang Christmas carols and exchanged gifts, which was the feature of the party.

A delicious lunch was served by the officers of the club with Miss Phelps and Mrs. W. E. Fitzpatrick, vice president, in charge.

A business meeting of the club will be held in the club rooms Thursday, Jan. 9.

It hinted that Royal Italian residences would be established at Buxi and Gorrahei, with jurisdiction over Ogaden province—implying that the Italians never intend to give up that area, regardless of what peace terms are ultimately settled upon.

Recrudescence of the newspaper's Anglophobia, which was the subject of two British protests to Rome, and was Britain's official excuse for concentrating her two major fleets in the Mediterranean, is of high importance in the present tension, bringing Europe back to the frantically nervous days when sanctions-enforcing Britain was first singled out as Italy's "enemy number one."

SELASSIE LISTS FIVE PROVISIONS FOR END OF WAR

Italian troops from Ethiopian territory.

2. Payment of indemnity by Italy.

3. Recognition of Ethiopia as a sovereign state by the big powers.

4. Delimitation of the frontiers between Ethiopia and the Italian colonies.

5. Acceptance of foreign non-Italian economic and financial administrative advisors.

Drawing up of the emperor's peace terms at this time, following Ethiopian victories in which the Italians were forced to withdraw from their front lines, was considered significant.

Ethiopia Winning

There was nothing in the program for Italy. It was said the Negus might waive the indemnity provision, but that the other items constituted a minimum. It was apparent the emperor believes he is winning his war.

The Ethiopian victory north of Makale, which occurred yesterday and was first reported today, tended to strengthen the belief in the capital.

ROME, Dec. 27.—(INS)—The Italian government today denied officially and emphatically an Ethiopian announcement that the Italian armies had been routed north of Makale.

is the Chicago area today. Government Forecaster A. W. Cook said the mercury would reach a low of five below zero early, and then would gradually climb to a high of approximately 10 above this afternoon. Tomorrow, he said, winter's icy grasp is expected to loosen even more, with a high of 20 degrees above zero anticipated.

Much Coal Distributed

Last night the mercury stayed below the zero line, sending hundreds of homeless and destitute to police stations and relief shelters in search of warmth. Charitable organizations distributed hundreds of tons of coal to poor families.

Ice-coated pavements and the sub-zero temperatures kept streets deserted last night. The usual holiday festivities at hotels and night clubs were sparsely attended.

A frozen body found in a snow drift on Chicago's northwest side presented police with a murder mystery today. The unidentified man had been shot through the head. His hat and overcoat were missing, leading authorities to believe he had been murdered elsewhere and uncereemoniously dumped into the snowdrift, probably in a renewal of the feud between peddlers of illicit alcohol.

Chicago suburbs received the brunt of the cold wave yesterday, with readings as low as six below reported. Last night the mercury hovered around the two below level in the loop.

In downstate Illinois highway traffic was resumed today, after being blocked for 24 hours by great snow drifts.

West lives, and the garage, 271 steps up a hill from the apartment, where Miss Todd's body was found by her maid.

First witness expected to be called is Zasu Pitts, famous film comedienne who often co-starred with Miss Todd in pictures. Her testimony, it is hoped, will throw some light on identity of the "San Francisco business man," according to reports this man attended a luncheon with Miss Pitts and her husband, J. L. Woodall, tennis champion, who also will appear before the grand jury.

Two prominent men who played important roles in the life of Miss Todd also are expected to be heard today. They are Pasquale "Pat" Di Cicco, her former husband, and West, her business partner and "best friend."
